

Updates on Work-Related Events, Live Performances, and Wedding Receptions at Housing Development Board Common Areas

- Work-related events at third-party venues. Since 28 September 2020, in-person work-related events such as conferences and Annual General Meetings have been allowed to resume at workplaces and businesses' own premises. From 22 October 2020, these work-related events will also be allowed to take place at third-party venues, up to 50 persons per event and subject to any additional premise owners' policies.
- Live performances at designated venues. From 1 November 2020, live performances will also be allowed to resume at designated live performance venues, with up to two zones of 50 audience members. Safe management measures such as limits on the number of production crew and performers who can be unmasked, and safe distancing on stage, backstage, between the performers and audience, and amongst the audience must continue to be observed. The Ministry of Culture, Community and Youth and National Arts Council will release further details.
- Wedding receptions at Housing Development Board (HDB) common areas. Wedding receptions will be allowed at HDB common areas managed by Town Councils. These receptions must be organised by a professional wedding organiser or company providing related services. The Singapore Malay Chamber of Commerce and Industry (SMCCI) will be helping to facilitate such wedding receptions. Before applying to the Town Councils, wedding organisers and couples of all ethnicities must first submit their event details to SMCCI and obtain a letter of acknowledgement. Couples and wedding organisers can approach SMCCI from 9 November 2020. Wedding receptions are subject to a cap of 100 unique attendees (including the wedding couple but excluding vendors) and prevailing safe management measures for wedding receptions. For more information, please visit www.smcci.org.sg/wedding from 23 October 2020.
